Stavros Charalambides is a theatrical producer, psychologist, training and supervising group psychotherapist and relational psychoanalyst. He is the Director of the Institute for Relational and Group Psychotherapy and an elected member of the Board of Directors of the American Group Psychotherapy Association (AGPA) and the International Association for Relational Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy (IARPP). He is the only European Certified Group Psychotherapist and Supervisor for Group Psychotherapy accredited by the Yalom Institute USA.

He holds a postgraduate specialization in Interpersonal Psychoanalysis from the William Alanson White Institute (USA), and serves as a training and supervising psychoanalyst in the Postgraduate Program in Relational Psychotherapy/Psychoanalysis and the Training Program in Group Psychotherapy based on Irvin Yalom and Relational Group Dynamics at ISOPS.

He is a clinical member of AGPA, the Eastern Group Psychotherapy Society of New York (EGPS), the International Association for Group Psychotherapy and Group Processes (IAGP), and the Group Analytic Society International (GASi). He co-chairs the Special Interest Group on Couples, Families, and Groups within IARPP.

His clinical interests focus primarily on the parallel treatment of individuals in both individual and group settings, as well as the facilitation of large groups at national and international levels. His writing centers on inter-organizational group processes, envy and destructiveness in transference and countertransference, and the study of group dynamics in small, median, and large group contexts.

His recent book The Executioner of Envy was published in October 2022 by Disigma Publications and was adapted into a theatrical production at Studio Mavromichali during the 2023–2024 season, continuing into a second season. In 2023 and 2024, he edited and contributed to the first and second volumes on relational psychoanalysis and group psychotherapy, also published by Disigma. His second personal book, The Servants of Wrath, was published in March 2025.

Most recently, he co-chaired the 21st International Conference of the International Association for Relational Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy, held in Athens in June 2025.
